BOSCO London is proud to unveil an extraordinary new collaboration with Nature Squared.

Eggshell Snakeskin

is a remarkable surface crafted from real eggshell waste collected from kitchens, bakeries, and restaurants across Cebu in the Philippines. Each piece of shell is meticulously hand-laid to create the distinctive snakeskin design, ensuring no two pieces are ever the same.

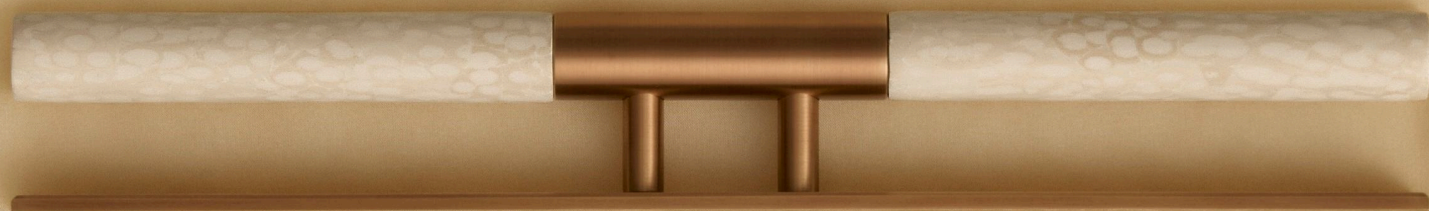

The result is a striking fusion of craftsmanship, sustainability, and design - transforming everyday waste into a truly distinctive finish.

For more than 25 years

Nature Squared has maintained an unwavering focus on being a truly sustainable business, creating innovative, earth-centric materials for design and luxury living.

They work with materials as diverse as grasses, seeds, bark, nuts, seashells, feathers

BOSCO London's philosophy

has always centred on the sustainable utilisation of natural resources – reusing rather than wasting. We began by working with African antelope horn, a by-product of the game and meat industry. Today, our materials have expanded to include water buffalo horn, cow horn, vegetable-tanned leathers, cork, and most recently eggshells.

Over the years, we have admired Nature Squared's genuine commitment to social and environmental responsibility. This collaboration brings together a shared belief in thoughtful material use and a common vision for creating pieces that have a meaningful impact – creatively, socially, and environmentally.

“Nature Squared buys about 30 tons of organic waste a year, payment for which equates to the income for approximately 50 jobs”

“The existential threat to our planet is clear. Meaningful conservation needs us to change our consumption habits. We do our part by providing a principled choice of new and desirable options, without the need to compromise on beauty, luxury or statement-making design.”

Lay Koon Tan - Nature Squared

“This is not about ticking boxes - it’s something real. A genuinely thoughtful product that is socially and environmentally responsible, while also being crafted to exceptional human standards.”
